Introduction

In the field of Inclusive Education it is almost as important to have a good theoretical basis and a well developed work method as it is to face real cases, which can be a challenge when dealing with multicultural communities or groups of children and adolescents in a situation of social exclusion. Specialized attention from psychology, in real environments, to the various groups of young people in this case represents an important advance in the competencies and capabilities of the professional. For this very reason, TECH has created this program, in which the psychologist will be immersed for 3 weeks in an environment of Inclusive Education to put into practice all their knowledge about the approach to situations with children and adolescents in a situation of social exclusion, in the company of the best experts.

In particular, they will manage techniques and strategies for intervention with respect to the diversity of students based on the evaluation of their educational community, family environment and social context. It will also delve directly into the role of teachers in facilitating these processes. Likewise, the professional will develop competencies to interpret, in situ, the elements and aspects of an inclusive educational institution.

All of this will be done in a prestigious center, which will allow you to perfect and further expand your skills in the different areas of school mediation and integration of teaching communities. During this academic period, they will be supervised by a professional of the institution, as an assistant tutor. This pedagogical figure will be in charge of supervising the psychologist's educational progress and, in addition, of integrating them into the daily dynamics and tasks of the other specialists working in the center. Through this intensive 120-hour internship, the TECH student will acquire high competencies that will open the doors to competitive and demanding job options.
